Below is the closing public comment
by Sultan developer Kay George re “terrorists” in Sultan:

“I have a comment that I am disappointed with the moratorium, but I think there’s probably more going on than we know and that’s why the majority of you voted for the moratorium. And I wanted to say that most of you I voted for, but I didn’t vote for ecological terrorists that seem to want to hurt our community and stop development. And as you continue to go that way and – all you’re doing is negotiating with the terrorists. And, um, Bruce, to answer your question and hope that this will be the end of it, terrorists’ M.O. is that they keep going. They just – you give at one – you give in at one thing [and] that just frees them up to go and hurt us somewhere else. And that’s exactly what’s going on here. And I hope that you, at one point try and realize that and stop negotiating with the terrorists.”
